

Special Track: Young researchers in economic and business sciences

The Luso-Spanish Conference on Scientific Management promotes a special track specifically directed to the group of young researchers in economics and business sciences. With the organization of this session, it is intended to encourage those researchers who are in the initial stages of their academic career to submit and present their communication within this context. Both end-of-studies (Bachelor degree or master), as well as doctoral projects in progress can be presented. This way, the aim is to stimulate research vocations and to consolidate the careers of those who have already started it.

This session also pretends to become a forum for active discussion and constructive dialog aimed at improving the quality of the research works that are presented within it, taking to this end the format of doctoral consortium. In the frame of this special track, the young researchers will have the opportunity to share their initiatives and to receive valuable feedback from experienced academics (members of the scientific committee of the conference) in the shape of comments, suggestions, possible theoretical approaches, methodologies or bibliography of interest.

In addition, an award will be given to the best research work presented in this track, distinguishing its authors with the “Young researcher award in economic and business sciences”.

Submission Rules

The submission of these works is carried out in accordance with the general standards defined for the communications to the Conference. However, before the SCIENTIFIC AREA, it should include the expression: YOUNG RESEARCHERS IN ECONOMIC AND BUSINESS SCIENCES, in capital letters.

Registration and fees

Registration in this modality will be processed with a discount of 36% on the total conference fee.
